It was entirely my fault for putting myself in a situation where I needed rescue. I even wrote a couple of articles for Dog-Lover about being a rescue dog, and how to choose and select a rescue dog. I have my story, and my parents have mine. No one else will ever know the kind of treatment I received when I was a rescue. The people on the other end of the phone line tell me how long they have loved me, and how much I mean to them. None of them can recall times when I was aggressive, or mean-spirited. It is always a joy to talk to them, because I am there for them whenever they need me. If I die, my angel will visit me, and I won't be alone. I am in good company with hundreds of other rescue dogs. My parents also tell me that I keep them safe, and keep them young. They look forward to coming over to see me whenever they can. They wish that I
