One of the surest signs that the industry is recovering should be new cinemas that feel ... The Pittsburgh Mills cinema will reopen under a new leadership. This happened just a few days after closing in the midst of the coronavirus pandemic. When the cinema closed on Wednesday night, the owners were forced to leave the place open to keep the local community alive. At a press conference on Thursday, Tramgate Entertainment Group chief executive and chief operating officer Patrick Escalette said the theater will return to full operations once the pandemic is over.
