Now, we're moving on to the next level. See, you can build a beautiful bookcase, but the picture doesn't really do the project justice. You'll have to check out the full-length video below for a truly inspiring look at this DIY project. If you take a look at the picture, there isn't much to explain here. In fact, I think it might be easier for some of you to watch the video and read the directions as that way you'll see all of it unfold. The main thing to know is that there is actually a bit of woodworking involved, especially if you want to make the wood look super flat. It doesn't look very complicated, but it requires a bit of setup to get it done. Even with that, the project isn't incredibly hard to do. This would be a perfect project for kids. They can even help you with the video. It may be a bit challenging for the older kids, but it's something they can definitely do. [singlepic id=1680 w=600 h=450 float=left] You'll need a sharpie to mark the front and back edges of the bookcase. These are the two edges that will be cut off when the bookcase is done. The front edge will be cut
