In recent weeks, media brands have unveiled their 30-second spots for the Feb. 7 big game, and the meat of the ads will air during the championship showdown between the New England Patriots and Atlanta Falcons. And while the spots are expected to make viewers laugh, cry, and cringe, one often overlooked aspect of the ads is what, or who, made the brand's tagline, "More than a soda," so catchy. This year marks the 17th time Pepsi and Co. has sponsored the game, which makes it the longest-lasting title sponsor in the 40-year history of the NFL's marquee event.
