Summary on mini-KMS Activator v.1.052 Office 2010 VL.rarQ: Passing array of objects in jQuery.ajax function I want to call a controller function in a back end. public void CreateEmployee(Employee[] data) { //Perform process on data } [HttpPost] public void AddEmployee([FromBody]Employee[] data) { //Put data in database } I have a form in my view with multiple text boxes for Employee data and a submit button. My jQuery code is as below: $(function () { $('#button').click(function (e) { $.ajax({ url: '/api/controller/method', type: 'POST', data: { data: ['1','2','3'] }, success: function (data) { //data will contain id of newly created employee console.log(data); } }); }); }); But I'm getting the following exception: Model type 'System.Collections.Generic.List`1[WebApplication1.Models.Employee]' for property 'Data' does not have a default property. Could anyone please suggest the solution for this? A: Change your $.ajax call to: data: { 3da54e8ca3
