And just to make sure the community gets a fair shake in the coverage, the newspaper will invite five Latino leaders to share their thoughts in a series called "Latino Leaders Speak." First up is Marcela Sandoval, the San Francisco outreach director for the National Hispanic Association for the Arts. The organization's mission is to generate awareness of the cultural contributions of Hispanic Americans. As part of the Times' coverage, Sandoval will talk about the popular painting El Camino Real del Sur by Hernan Bas in her column next Tuesday. She recently published a book called "HipHop for Latinos: Spanish Versions of Rapper Fabolous." On Thursdays, Ana Maria Martinez-Jaramillo will talk about the National Council of La Raza, an organization of more than 300,000 members. The following Tuesday, Gustavo Arellano will talk about his column, "Ask a Mexican," a column that examines issues facing Hispanic Americans. He is the author of the book "It's Not All Baseball: The Glorious Unraveling of America." The final three conversations will be about the part of the country with the largest Hispanic population — California.Last updated on.From the section European Football The increasingly heated row over an offensive World Cup song criticised by German politicians has "crossed the line," a Berlin representative says. East Germany played West Germany in the 1974 World Cup final and both teams have since been reunited. But Friday's in-game song, called "Sieg Heil", has caused controversy after a video of it was posted online. Armin Laschet, the leader of the Christian Democrats in Berlin, said he was "furious". "I expect that FIFA will take a position and make sure no such provocation is made possible any more 3da54e8ca3
