The MSAA on the following titles are limited and may not look very good:.21 Flares 21 Flares × Every year the Hindu New Year is celebrated with much enthusiasm across the world. The festival also marks the start of the New Year for those who adhere to the Hindu calendar, however the date used by the Government of India is August 14. Several areas of India celebrate this festival with pomp and grandeur. The Diwali Festival is also celebrated across all of North and Central India, the south also celebrates the festival. In Kerala, the festival is celebrated with reverence and is called Deepavali. Kerala is one of the only states in India that celebrates this festival. In Mumbai, Diwali is widely celebrated with the maximum participation of residents being the Hindu community. Odisha and West Bengal are also home to the festival, with some parts of South India also celebrating the festival. The festival of lights in North America is also celebrated after Diwali, this event is known as the Deepavali Festival of the South. Diwali in Mumbai Diwali is also widely celebrated in Mumbai, the local Diwali celebrations are popular with the Marathi and Gujarati communities. The Ganesh Utsav festivities are also commonly celebrated in Mumbai, these are usually larger celebrations than the more local Diwali celebrations. The Ganesh festival features large scale processions of idols of the elephant god Ganesh, many of the idols making appearances during Mumbai's Ocean Grove, Girgaon and Dadar residents. Diwali is one of the most widely celebrated festivals in India and can be celebrated by people from all walks of life. The festival is celebrated by many across the country, however celebrations can vary in terms of the level of solemnity and pomp attached to the festival. Whether you are going to be in Mumbai for the festival or you are travelling through Mumbai this Diwali season, we wish you a happy Diwali and hope you have a wonderful
