What's new in Fifa 22:

- “The Best Move Yet”: Players have become even more versatile than ever before, with careful refinements to dribbling, shooting and heading. Improved “take-ons” and passes force opponents away from the play, making it more realistic to control game where opposition players can scuttle away from the ball and save themselves from danger. Players also respond to pace and acceleration more naturally: defenders reel away from balls before they're played, making clear decisions that motivate counter-attacks. Your options are just that much more varied when managing players in Ultimate Team.
- Strike up a debate: New skills have increased the ways you can interact with the ball, including starting and concluding dribbles, offloads, and offsides. This means new opportunities to make plays out of the back, with both cross-field and through-ball skills used to find plenty of space. New passes mean better-quality shots, making your teammates more aware of your movements on the pitch so they can find you more effectively.
- Keen to win: This year we're using the Your Club skill to find and purchase items like players, kits, equipment and stadiums. But we're also improving the game as a whole by making organic improvements that feel as much like playing in real life as possible. We've tweaked the ball's properties, refined acceleration more realistically, and tuned tactical skills so that you always feel like your performance is improving as the game progresses.
- Hustle up a storm: It's more dynamic, more tactical, and more spontaneous than ever in FIFA 22. Defend, attack, wait, and improvise. Intuitive logic and covers team communication throughout Ultimate Team and the game itself, with abilities becoming more frequent and more useful as the game progresses.
- New tactics: Choose to play for speed, see-out, shape your passing game, or team up. The options for customising Ultimate Team have never been so diverse, with new skills available to suit each play. Shape your formation around a given selection of tactics, and use game knowledge, preparation, and smart team selection to rise to the top.
