In FIFA Soccer we use player positioning and player information as a basis for gameplay. This year we're also using player motion and realistic player movement, based on real-life performance. Players run on-pitch, and in places off-pitch. Players pass more between each other than they did in the past. Players strike the ball from different angles, in different ways. It's important to note that this year's stats are all based on the real-life data we've collected from the players in "The Squad." In the past, the player positioning system in FIFA was designed for gameplay. At this point in development, gameplay is the top priority and we're constantly working on its strengths, as well as trying to make it more natural and useful. The player positioning system in the new game includes new features, such as: Pro Player Insight This lets you have a 360° view of the pitch. With a push of the L2 button, you can see the pitch from any angle. And you can search for your favorite players and watch them on a pitch-by-pitch basis. With Pro Player Insight you can also see real-time team stats, based on your favorite players. Team players' attributes are based on their performance. And it's also possible to monitor individual players' attributes in real-time. I.e. if a player in the opposition team has a perfect chance of scoring, you can watch the first touches and progress of his shot. You can choose to look only at the angle from which the opponent made his shot, or you can watch the whole process, including after the ball has gone into the net. And we're also including a number of other stats in the game. Up to four sets of detailed stats appear in the game: a general overview, the player's individual statistics, the team's general overview and detailed stats for the specific player. Pro Player Stats: Real-time match statistics for every player, based on his performance. You can get a real-time overview of the match and use your own player's stat to follow your own player. Pro Player Stats improves upon Real Player Motion (RPM) and Real Player Statistics (RPS) by providing a player-by-player breakdown of all statistics on the pitch in

The selections for the 2017 FIFA World Cup are as follows: England, France, Germany, Italy, Portugal, Russia, Spain, and Uruguay. Read more FIFA 22: The Game If you're new to the series, it is a pretty straight forward series of football video games. The game encourages you to play as the national team of your choosing and guides you to the World Cup. Read more Quick Start That's it! That's the most basic of quick starts. You start with the World Team and you get to play matches. This Quick Start gives you a start of players that can play with you right now. You can pick a country yourself or go with one of the pre-selected ones. In the World Cup, the game goes through each of the 32 nations in the World Cup and you can unlock different kits for every one and also win stadiums. Read more Gameplay If you're new to football, it's not a very easy game to get your head around. You can probably enjoy it for a couple of hours, but the depth of gameplay means that a lot of people don't stick with it. The game is not like the other football games that are out there. The game is actually quite similar to Madden except with things like goal kicks. It's a very different game style and plays slower.
