Photographers can easily manipulate images in Photoshop to edit out unwanted parts of the image, selectively crop, and enhance their images. Graphic designers can use Photoshop to create images specifically for the web. Photoshop Basics Photoshop is a tool that enables you to create digital images from scratch or modify existing ones. Its purpose is to take a digital photo and manipulate it into a slightly different image. Editing options in Photoshop allow you to edit any single element of an image, such as cropping and adjusting tonal values. In addition, you can remove objects from an image, change colors, remove blur, adjust lighting, change the overall shape of an image, and add special effects to your image. When you work in Photoshop, you can edit the different elements of an image separately or simultaneously, making it easy to control the overall look of your image. Figure 1-1 shows a default (untouched) photo of a fairground ride in PS. I cropped a small section of the ride (shown with a red box in Figure 1-1) by choosing Image⇒Canvas Size, and then dragging the edge of the image to the left and right to make the area smaller. I also desaturated the image by choosing Image⇒Adjustments⇒Desaturate. As you can see in the hist

Q: Convert date strings to DateTime in Powershell I have date strings in the format of "4/25/2017" and I would like to convert them into PowerShell DateTime objects. I have tried using `$mydate = [datetime]::ParseExact($d,$dformat,$culture)` but all the resulting dates seem to be 1970-01-01 00:00:00 to 1970-01-01 00:00:00. How can I convert such dates to their correct dates? A: The way you're formatting the date string looks good. I suspect the problem is that you have 0s in the month and day part of the string, which means the output will have a value of 1 for the day and 2 for the month. You should format those as 01 for the day and 12 for the month. Try this: `$mydate = [DateTime]::ParseExact('4/25/2017', 'MM/dd/yyyy', [cultureinfo]::InvariantCulture)` It's still the light at the end of the tunnel but where are the trains going to come from? A lack of funding has forced the Aberdeen rail network to stop building new trains and agreeing maintenance deals. I want to see no more delays for AMTRAK services and want to see a money-saving programme of refurbishments as soon as possible. Passengers must be given reassurances that the service is safe. I will be lobbying the Scottish Government and other key politicians to be assured that the railways are safe for passengers and staff. When I was approached by the LDMR I asked whether the Scottish Government had accepted the recommendations of the Rail Delivery Group and appointed consultants. This month it was announced that two of the consultants were no longer involved in the project and that the rail minister had written to the rail unions to tell them that talks over the staff and driver contracts would continue in the future. I think the timescale given for delivery of new trains has been too long and I would like a realistic time-scale for delivery of new trains and a realistic time-scale for resourcing the maintenance service. It must be obvious that new trains and modern track will improve safety and reduce delays but the Scottish Government must make a clear commitment to delivery. I know there are a number of TUPE replacement
