The East Region celebrates the LGBT community For the first time in Charleston we have a regional conference to celebrate the LGBT community. Recently, the East Regional Conference was held in Charleston. This convention helps regional groups share ideas and empower their members. The East Carolina University Department of Psychology hosted the first conference last week. "We hold these conventions annually all throughout the East Coast," said Nate Castro, the chair of the regional conference. In attendance were psychologists, mental health counselors, social workers and more. They were all there to help. "I think it's very important because the LGBT Community is in a crisis right now," said Castro. Castro said the stresses of family and society have weighed heavy on the LGBT community. But there are so many people that help them. "We really need to bring them together to help each other and find out how to get better and be happier," said Castro. Some of the activities at the conference included helping people with their problems and creating more inclusive families. "It is an empowering event for our members to come together," said Hali Lemmon, a social worker and educator at WCU. She said the biggest issue of the LGBT community is that of family and friends. "We may have kids that are gay, and their parents don't accept it," said Lemmon. "Gay and lesbian parents are parents, and we are accepting of them," said Castro. Lemmon said the Family Acceptance Project's biggest goal is to make more people aware of the term "family acceptance." "There's a big discrepancy there of Users are marked with IP addresses. I have a situation, where users are generated with the standard User data, but then I need to add an IP address by hand to add that user as a allowed user. The rule works fine, but there's no way to check in the admin interface that an IP address has been given to the user. There's even no question which user a specific IP address belongs to. So, my question is, is there a standard way to register this information with the users? note that it is not about duplicate entries but about a given IP with different passwords. so you want to allow a group of users from the same network, and not just a single user without changing their respective settings. Also note that you cannot add an IP to an existing user (have you checked if ipbooting is capable of merging users?). You only add new users. Unless you can add a random IP to an existing user, it is not possible to add an IP to a specific user. You can however restrict a user to a certain IP, or to all IPs in the same group. Some admin solution for this exists, but there are not much of them. The most famous one is called Clonix. // // Generated by class-dump 3.5 (64 bit) (Debug version compiled Oct 15 2018 10:31:50). // // class-dump is Copyright (C) 1997
