His name is Tori Schwartz, and if you're interested in working with him, you can find his work at the Ponyland forum here. I am trying to switch to night mode on my E-M1 and to do that I press Menu > Set Mode > Night. I would expect the camera to go into night mode when you press the button but it does nothing. I am using Firmware version 1.0.1. I have disabled the shutter button double press option. This is a Sony A7rII. I have gone into Menu and changed the Mode to Mirrorless and turned the Camera off. I am using the default Customize mode. I have noticed that when I switch the camera off the the Olympus icon will change from the red shutter symbol to the green battery symbol. The other thing that seems to be happening is when I start to take a picture I get a message at the top of the screen reading "Pushing the shutter release" followed by an exclamation mark. Did this just start happening? I don't think that it is a mechanical problem, but if you have any suggestions I would appreciate it.
